Archaeology talk set at Dana Adobe

Students from Cabrillo College and archaeologists from Albion Environmental will talk about the picture of historic and prehistoric life that's developing from their dig at the Dana Adobe at a public conversation Wednesday.

The informal talk will take place from 5:30 to 7 p.m. on the veranda of the adobe, 671 S. Oakglen Ave., Nipomo.

Cabrillo College in Santa Cruz is conducting an archaeological field school at the Dana Adobe, where students are helping lead archaeologists from Albion survey specific sites on the property, where they are collecting, analyzing and cataloging the artifacts they have uncovered.

The dig is being conducted as part of the mitigation measures required by the environmental impact report for the Dana Adobe Nipomo Amigos' planned Rancho Nipomo Heritage Park, which will include a cultural and educational center, interpretive displays and trails.

Admission to the conversation is free. For more information, call the DANA office at 929-5679.
